Letter from the Executive Director

Dear Friends of Give to Colombia:

The continued, global economic challenges presented in 2009 gave Give to Colombia (G2C) an opportunity to strengthen our focus and heighten our impact on our core areas of development: Education, Health and Economic Development. I am pleased to say that when we were needed the most – to build bridges and foster collaborative relationships between international donors and expert Colombian NGOs in this challenging environment – we were able to step up to the plate and launch ten new projects in 2009, pilot and replicate our co-financing partnership with Colombia's Presidential Agency for Social Action and International Collaboration, and successfully hold our third annual benefit gala, Be-Live. In other words, G2C had a dynamic and impactful year, once again demonstrating the value and effectiveness of our model.

With six years of experience under our belts and more than $8 million dollars raised for social initiatives, we have many impressive stories to tell that demonstrate our qualitative and quantitative impact. Included in this year's annual report, we have mentioned accomplishments such as:

- ③ Education: Expanding the reach of our SCRATCH Teacher Training Initiative to several regions throughout Colombia, using a blend of onsite and virtual training methodologies; opening an adaptive computer lab for students with cognitive disabilities, as well as offering training courses to families and teachers on how to leverage technology for the comprehensive development of children with disabilities.
- ③ Health and Nutrition: Supporting the integration of gender equality principles and practices into the sports development/peace building methodology, bringing a medical and surgical health brigade providing immediate dentistry and reproductive health attention services to women and children living in vulnerable and extremely poor rural communities only to be reached by water.
- ③ Economic Development: Creating opportunities for women whom are victims of landmines to establish self-sustainable livelihoods that benefit their families and communities, through entrepreneurial training, reintegration support, and seed funding to start micro-businesses in rural communities that are recovering from the social conflict; and replicating in Mexico our financial literacy and entrepreneurship development model developed through our Promotion of Financial Culture and Entrepreneurship among Garment Workers in Medellin Initiative.

I am proud to say we have been able to implement 75 projects and have touched the lives of over 113,000 people, including youth, women heads-of-household, various Colombian ethnic groups, and more.

As we look forward to 2010, we build upon the lessons of 2009 to advance our efforts and connect new and returning donors to the needs and opportunities within Colombia's social sector. This includes closing the year with a commitment to expand our strategies to transform philanthropy through the Clinton Global Initiative's platform for Commitments to Action. The impact of this commitment will be the sharing of our lessons learned to Colombia's business leaders and influential families, and facilitating their transition into social investors who, under a theory of change model, have the information and the tools to effectively support long-term, strategic interventions in Colombia from at home and abroad.

Sincerely,

Angela María Tafur

Where We Work: COLOMBIA

We focus our efforts in Colombia because of its history and its future. In the face of over 40 years of an armed, internal conflict that has left millions of people forcefully displaced from their home communities, Colombia remains a country filled with economic, social and cultural opportunities. The question is not if there are opportunities to be realized, but rather, how to connect those opportunities to the country's most vulnerable populations.

The internal social conflict has disproportionately affected women, ethnic indigenous and afro-Colombia groups, and rural communities. Urban centers are overwhelmed by the waves of internally displaced people seeking security, housing, and stability upon which to establish livelihoods that include access to economic opportunities, and education. Finally, there are children growing up in a social context shaped by decades of violence, seeking access to education, technologies, and conflict resolution methodologies that will shape them into self-empowered citizens.

Events

🌀 BeLive 2009

Give to Colombia joined for the third consecutive year Formula Smiles, Genesis Foundation, United for Colombia and Key for Colombia for a wonderful and glamorous night for Colombia.

The Viceroy at Icon Brickell was the spectacular venue where this event took place. BeLive raised more than $600,000 in donations and had the participation of more than 600 high profile guests. One of the highlights of the night was the auction of the Wayuu mochilas that thanks to the support of Lauren Santo Domingo were enhanced by designers like Giorgio Armani, Oscar de la Renta and Carolina Herrera, among 40 other worldwide designers. Guests from the U.S., Colombia and Latin America were delighted by the over-the-pool runway by swimsuit label OndadeMar, and the amazing concert by Latin Grammy Award winner Jorge Celedón.

We want to give special thanks to our donors, volunteers, and media outlets that supported us! For information, pictures and press coverage we welcome you to visit www.belivecolombia.org

🌀 CA Championship

The CA Championship World Golf Championship took place on March 2009 at the Doral Golf Resort & Spa. The tournament had a unique initiative "Tickets Fore Charity" in which non-profits had the opportunity to sell tickets for the Championship and 75% of the net proceeds were donated to the charity. Give to Colombia partner with Conexión Colombia and Key for Colombia to participate in the initiative. Thanks to the support of the people who bought their tickets with promotional code COL we obtained first place, earning $4,327.50 US among the three non-profits.

🌀 Siudy ENTRE MUNDOS

Siudy Entre Mundos is a unique spectacle full of adrenaline. It showcases a great virtuosity in the execution of the heels' drumming and flamenco scenes, as well as narrating an unforgettable love story written and directed by Siudy Garrido and Pablo Croce, awarded director with prestigious awards like the Grammys and MTV.

The show was presented in Miami for the first time on September 26 & 27th 2009 at the Gusman theater and it was in benefit of Give to Colombia and SaludArte. Give to Colombia received 15% of the net proceeds.
